The Naked Speaker

The public speaking recipe book

Diana Thomson

Next time you're asked to introduce yourself, or give a presentation at work, be fully prepared to speak confidently and inspire people to lean in and learn more from you.

When we speak to more than one person at a time, it's calling on skills we are not necessarily born with, but arguably anyone can learn. Whether it's presenting yourself for a job opportunity, outlining big ideas to colleagues, training staff, or going bigger and stepping onto a stage; your brother's wedding or an audience of thousands. Everything you need to know about preparing and delivering an outstanding speech is included in this one book.

Diana Thomson guides you through every step in a relatable context, with clear explanations and descriptions about how you can prepare, build on an idea, practice, then deliver a presentation that hits its mark. Every time.

You will also find details about mental preparation, calming nerves and all the items you need in your 'toolbox' to ensure smooth running on the day. Easy-to-follow diagrams and examples using the simple analogy of preparing a meal for any size group makes this book a valuable resource for communication in business and in everyday life.

Simple speaking preparation, tips and advice for any size group, in any situation. The key benefits you will get from this book include details on how to manage structure, flow of your presentation, rehearsals, storytelling essentials and body language.
