Summary

Once you have outlined all the information you wish to write about, create a large colorful version of this page, laminate it, and put it where you will see it every day – mark off the chapters as you write them. Ideally, you could use a program like Scrivener to create a version of the above in the corkboard mode, and use that instead of or as well as this writing plan. Work through writing your chapters consistently, but not necessarily in chronological order.
